

LOVE AND SEXUAL RELATIONSHIPS:
A longitudinal study of the Experiences And Plans Of Wealthier Young People Regarding The Upcoming Valentine's Day
In Phnom Penh, 2009-2014
(A Quantitative Study)

Executive Summary

This study seeks to answer the research question: “What plans do wealthier young people in Phnom Penh have for sexual activity on the upcoming Valentine’s Day?” This study follows up a 2009 quantitative study, using a cross-sectional survey design with cluster sampling to survey wealthier young people aged 15-24 years old in Phnom Penh (n=715).

Results from the 2014 survey show that compared to 2009, young people were less interested in the upcoming Valentine’s Day as a special day; especially, among young people in a couple (2009: 81% vs 2014: 56%). Many of them still planned to hang out on the upcoming Valentine’s Day, but at least one third of young people preferred to stay at home, an increase since 2009. Giving gifts were decreased (2009: 58.5% vs 2014: 47.2%) while young males may still give flowers, but the trend of young couples is to increasingly buy more expensive gifts for their sweethearts. There was not much change in young couple dating on the upcoming Valentine’s Day from the previous study. Sexual relationships among young people who think they will be able to have sex on the upcoming Valentine’s Day decreased compared to the previous study (2009:12.4% vs 2014: 11.3%), but young people in a couple planning to have sex increased (2009: 14.3% vs 2014: 15.8%). In this group, the percent of people who do not plan to use a condom increased two times (2009:15.6% vs 2014: 30.2%). Those experiencing first sex was approximately the same (around 40 percent). Correlations were observed between young people who plan for sex on the upcoming Valentine’s Day and those who think the upcoming Valentine’s Day is a special day (2009: 82.0% vs 2014: 78.0%).

The proportion of young males who plan to engage in non-consensual sex (i.e. said they will still have sex if their girlfriend / new girlfriend does not agree) has decreased (2009: 66.6% vs 2014: 47.4%). Some men who said they would not engage in non-consensual sex said “No, I will ignore sex, and just hang around for fun”. However the distribution of reasons attempt for sex increased markedly: “I will say to her if we don’t have sex we don’t really love each other, to try to get her to agree”, “I will pressure her by taking her far from town to try to have sex with her”, but it only appeared this upcoming Valentine’s Day 2014. Amongst young males and young males in a couple, many people said: “I will give her more expensive gift with the aim of having sex with her”. Approximately the same number of parents talked with their children about Valentine’s Day as in 2009. Around half the parents did not know what their children would do on the upcoming Valentine’s Day. At least one third of young people still do not know where Valentine’s Day comes from.

These Valentine’s Day quantitative study findings give more quantified information to compare to the previous study in 2009 that wealthier young people still do not understand the background of Valentine’s

Day clearly. Visible activities such as planning for a special day, giving gifts and hang out appear more likely to decrease, but invisible activities such as people's plan for sex, non-consensual sex, discussions about sexual issue, and parents who don't know what their children will do on that day is unchanged. The decrease in expected condom use, and the continued high proportion of men expecting non-consensual sex, shows that sexual rights and sexual health are concerns for young couples on Valentine's Day.

Therefore, interventions needs to more focus on sexual rights and condom use education before Valentine's Day.

The researcher designed this upcoming Valentine's Day study to continue on from the findings of his previous Valentine's Day quantitative study (Soprach, 2010). The researcher talked to several academics who gave some comments and advice, including about the questionnaire design.

The researcher finalized the study report with contributions from Population Health Development Association (PHD) who organized and managed their research assistants, peer educators of in Phnom Penh, in the field data collection. The data entry volunteers were managed by an IT specialist who was former SRH peer educator of Playing Safe project. The research and data entry volunteers for this study received training from the researcher, who also appreciated technical assistance from academics and friends in the form of comments and feedback and English editing of the report. This report will be published on line on 10 February 2014 in Khmer and English versions.

For this Valentine's Day study the researcher used his own resources such as funds, materials and time.

Firstly, I would like to express my thanks to the youth research and data entry assistants who spent their invaluable time undertaking to collect data from field work and entry data. Uch Ennith, who used to work closely with the researcher since the previous study, was selected to produce tables and charts in Ms Excel for both Khmer and English versions, Chorn Kemara contributed to typing Khmer Unicode that the author translated from English language into Khmer language and Phouk Samphaktra translated a telling story and a Valentine's Day history for this study.

I. Introduction

1.1. Background of the research

Cambodia's socio-economy has changed from a socialist regime to capitalist during the 1990s.¹ Over the last one-and-a-half decades, Cambodia has achieved high rates of economic growth and a rise in national living standards between the first national household survey in 1993/4² and the most recent survey in 2012.³ Annual GDP growth averaged 7.3 percent per annum over 2012.⁴ The 2008 Cambodian Census reports the largest population cohort to be aged 9-18 (24.5 per cent total population)⁵. This is the group the researcher chose for the first phase of this study. This group are currently 15-24 years of age. This population is experiencing rapid change both emotionally and physically, and many individuals in this age group are involved in high risk activities, including in sexual relationships. In certain respects, legal standards in Cambodia do draw a line between a child and an adult. The legal age of marriage is 18 for women and 20 for men.⁶ A recent national study indicated that men marry at a median age of 22.6 and start to be sexually active just before marriage, at a median age of 22.1; whereas women get married at a median age of 20.3. The median age at first marriage has been stable for the past 20 years. Women generally begin having sexual intercourse at about the same time as the average age to be married, at a median age of 20.8.⁷ Qualitative research undertaken in ? by the author showed that many young people are having sexual experiences at a much younger age. This includes numerous stories of non-consensual sex and group rape. Study participants reported that pressure for sex, and the number of consensual and consensual sexual experiences, was high on and around Valentine's Day. This motivated the current study. An initial quantitative study prior to Valentine's Day 2009 was followed up in 2014, to understand people's attitudes towards sex.

Valentine's Day and sex:

There are varying opinions as to the origin of Valentine's Day. Some experts state that it originated from St. Valentine, a Roman who was martyred for refusing to give up Christianity. He died on February 14, 269 A.D., the day that later became devoted to love. Gradually, February 14 has become a date to exchange messages of love, and St. Valentine has become the patron saint of lovers. The anniversary of his death is often marked by sending poems and simple gifts such as flowers.⁸ And other stories suggest that Valentine may have been killed for attempting to help Christians escape harsh Roman prisons, where they were often beaten and tortured. According to one legend, an imprisoned Valentine actually sent the first "valentine" greeting himself after he fell in love with a young girl--possibly his jailor's daughter--who visited him during his confinement. Before his death, it is alleged that he wrote her a letter signed "From your Valentine," an expression that is still in use today. Although the truth behind the Valentine legends is murky, the stories all emphasize his appeal as a sympathetic, heroic and--most importantly--romantic figure. By the Middle Ages, perhaps thanks to this reputation, Valentine would become one of the most popular saints in England and France. St. Valentine's Day is now a day for sweethearts. It is the day that you show your friend or loved one that you care.⁹

Valentine's Day is acknowledged throughout the world. Valentine's Day in Cambodia has only recently become popular, especially among young teenagers who buy and give flowers, gifts and cards to each others, and hang out with their sweethearts or friends.¹⁰ Generally young men in Cambodia have more of an opportunity to hang out in groups and to socialize than young women who often stay at home. Young women have a chance to hang out during the Khmer New Year and other festivals.¹¹ Young Cambodians are being introduced to notions of individuality and materialism, and are experiencing a greater level of urban wealth and sexual freedom than ever before.¹²

1.2. Statement of the Problem

Cambodia is recognized for its success in combating HIV and AIDS. It is estimated that the prevalence rate among adults, aged 15 to 49 years, declined from 1.2% in 2003 to 0.7% in 2013.¹³ The 100% condom use program is playing an important role in the reduction of HIV prevalence. More men in the sentinel groups reported sex with girlfriends than in the previous years of Behavioral Sentinel Survey and condom use with sweethearts is on the rise. However, condom use with sweethearts remains low. Consistent condom use with sweethearts was 39.4 percent in 2010, amongst those with one or two partners.¹⁴

STI prevalence among high-risk populations is the same as in 2001 despite national and multilateral efforts to increase female sex workers' access to STI prevention and care services.¹⁵ Tarr's study strongly suggested that many interventions ignore other contexts where young people, including young, unmarried females, are also involved in risk-related sexual behavior.¹⁶ New opportunities and greater freedoms for young people appear to have resulted in changing social norms as well, with young men turning more to sweethearts rather than paid partners for sexual relationships.¹⁷ Unsafe abortion in Cambodia remains one of the most common causes of maternal death (20-29%)¹⁸, despite the legalization of abortion in 1997.¹⁹

A quantitative study, conducted by Assumption University in Bangkok, stated that one fifth of teenagers surveyed will have sex on Valentine's Day.²⁰ A panel discussion on sexuality among young people on

Valentine's Day in Phnom Penh organized by the NGO, Population Health Development Association, raised questions about risky sexual activity of young people on Valentine's Day, and possible negative impacts.²¹

The author's previous Valentine's Day²² qualitative study findings reveal that young couples did not understand clearly the origins of Valentine's Day, now popular among wealthier young people in urban areas of Cambodia, although they recognized that it comes from foreign cultures via the media. The results show that more than half of the interviewees in the study were happy to engage in sex on that day and at least a few of them lost their virginity. Although most reported using condoms, perhaps reflecting increased awareness of sexual and reproductive health issues, several instances of coercion were also reported. There seems to be a general lack of parental understanding about their children's sexual activity and a corresponding lack of open communication. The study also recommended a quantitative survey among wealthier young people.²³ A year later, the quantitative survey on Love and sexual relationships: experiences and plans of wealthier young people regarding the upcoming Valentine's Day in Phnom Penh in 2009 found that 12.4 percent young people state that they will be able to have sex and 14.3 young people in a couple state that they will be able to have sex with their sweethearts on the upcoming Valentine's Day.²⁴ This current study was therefore designed to follow up the quantitative study to compare the initial survey with results five years later. This seeks to answer the research question:

“What plans do wealthier young people in Phnom Penh have for sexual activity on the upcoming Valentine's Day?”

1.3. The Objectives of the Study

Key objectives of the present study to follow up and compare to the previous quantitative study in 2009 were:

- To learn more about wealthier young people's relationships and sexual behavior, and plans with regard to the upcoming Valentine's Day;
- To understand young people's perception of their parents' attitudes towards the upcoming Valentine's Day.

1.4. Significance of the Study

This quantitative survey was completed with a large sample (n=715) of wealthier young people in Phnom Penh, who completed questionnaires about their experience and their perspectives on the upcoming Valentine's Day. These findings and recommendations are given to stakeholders such as local authorities, media, parents, and sexual and reproductive health programmers who can design interventions targeting Valentine's Day, and young people more widely. It is also a guide for researchers to design studies in more detail about the sexual behavior of young people. These findings will inform young people and help them to understand their sexual behavior in relation to this event.

1.5. Scope and Limitation of the Study

Time Constraint

This quantitative study was designed to further explore the findings of the previous study. The available time has been very limited to review previous studies, as the author was busy with consultancy and column writing.

Financial Constraints

This study was supported by the author's own budget derived from private consultancies and his column to the Phnom Penh Post. Hence, the budget was limited and the researcher was not able to hire professionals or highly qualified researchers for this study.

Target Population:

According to experience, literature review and observation every year, the researcher decided to choose wealthier 15-24 year-olds who hang out in the parks of Phnom Penh, as in the previous 2009 study. The study follows the WHO/UNICEF (1998) definition of youth as 15-24 years old.²⁵ This survey did not target lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) couples.

Structured Questionnaires were designed including informed consent

The researcher designed a structured questionnaire in English to receive some advice from advisors and then the questionnaire was separated into four questions. 18 questions are the same in four categories which are: young male in a couple, young male not in a couple, young female in a couple, and young female not in a couple. This was the same as the previous study format, but a few questions were revised. The questionnaires were then translated into Khmer and English versions.

²⁵ Ramage, I. (2004). Cambodia Baseline Survey. Phnom Penh: RHIYA Project, EU/UNFPA. p.5.

Separate survey sheets were prepared, as some questions were only asked to specific participants. Dating questions were asked only to young people in a couple. Males who answered ‘yes’, to planned sexual activity on Valentine’s Day were specifically asked what they would do if their girlfriend did not agree with their request for sex. Also in the case of the question for young males about “sex with sex worker” and “Bauk” (gang rape). Males were asked if they were involved in Bauk in the last 3 months. This was designed to follow up previous data on male youth Bauk participation, and to find out if wealthier young males would attempt to force their girlfriend to “Bauk”.

Training:

All research assistants were already trained in sexual and reproductive health education, and all had peer educator experience with Population Health Development Association (PHD), which has given them strategies to more easily contact wealthier young people in Phnom Penh. With this in mind, the researcher provided refresher training, including objectives, concept of the study, role plays and pre-testing of the questionnaire before the field work. The training was on a half day on Saturday, January 18, 2014. Although some data entry volunteers already had experience with data entry into SPSS 18.0, the researcher gave them further training and coaching by a team leader who is an information technology specialist.

The Research Assistants Shared Lessons Learned After Collecting Data:

All research assistants reported approaching several people who then refused to participate in the study (in total 13 people). The reasons given for declining to participate included: they went on to refuse an interview also; some were in a rush to go home; others said they didn’t want to answer the questions, they prefer relaxing. Others said they had no time to complete the questionnaire, or were busy talking or eating.

Interviewers also found it difficult to approach several couples who were seated very close together, embracing and kissing. Some groups that were approached included people who were over the target age.

At least a few interviewees could not read the questionnaire, so, the research assistants interviewed them. In one case the respondent’s friend read and then he ticked the appropriate box himself.

Data Entry Into SPSS and Data Cleaning:

During data entry and cleaning, 5 percent of the total data collected (36 out of a total of 751) observations) were incomplete and/or over the target age range. This may reflect a higher rate of incomplete questionnaire’s when using the self-administered method.

Translation:

As English is not the researcher's first language, translation between Khmer and English is always problematic and it's easy to lose meaning. In order to avoid this problem, the researcher checked the translation with native English speakers.

1.6. Definitions of key terms

Songsar: Three meanings used in this study: A term used for a woman who has already been engaged or has been in a relationship. Nowadays, this term is used to refer to a sexual relationship. Around 25% lead to marriage. *[Male student]*²⁶

This is the term used to address the man with whom we have mutual love. Generally speaking, when the term sangsar is used, marriage is sometimes possible. *[Female student]*²⁷

Songsar: used for sweetheart/Mith Pros for boyfriend/Mith Srey for girlfriend.²⁸

Wealthier Young People: Young people's wealth status was identified through their (expensive) clothes, their gestures and characteristics (looking 'cool' as individuals or in a group), and by their mode of transport (usually ride a motorbike or a car).

The concept of "trust" or "trustworthiness": describes a quality of relationship with their partner. "This includes: faithfulness, meeting through family or friends, passing informal assessments, social status, employment, financial support, avoiding bars, appearance, and virginity. It is important to note that youth appear to evaluate partners on a combination of traits in order to deem partners trustworthy. Although youth use criteria to judge trust, they seem to overlook other criteria that could further decrease their risk for STIs/HIV."²⁹

Non-consensual sex: includes rape or attempted rape, unwanted touching or fondling/molestation, non-contact forms of abuse such as verbal harassment, forced viewing of pornography, flashing, assault, forced sex...etc.³⁰

Bauk/bowk/baowk (Gang rape) – known colloquially as bauk (Khmer for 'plus').

Bauk in a slang terms:

1. Bauk generally occurs after one (or two) youth(s) negotiate a price with a sex worker, or solicit a woman's affection and arrange a proposed destination for sexual intercourse.
2. Then the woman is taken to a hotel or guest-house, where numerous other young men are waiting, or will soon arrive.
3. The youths coerce the woman into having sex with them all without permission, often accompanied by violence.
4. Almost all of the young men say that it is not rape because they have already paid for sex.³¹

II. Literature Review of Previous Studies of Sexual Behavior in Cambodia

Generally speaking, western culture assumes equity between the sexes and an equal right to choose a sexual partner. Western culture is perceived as individualized and encouraging independence, so men and women are thought to have equal opportunity to do what they want. Meanwhile, some practicing Christians will wait until they get married and are virgins when they are married and remain faithful to their spouse.³² In the United States, teen pregnancy rates have declined sharply since 1991 but remain high compared to other industrialized nations. Nearly 1 million girls aged 15 to 19 years old become pregnant each year, which is about 20 percent of sexually active females in that age group. Most of the pregnancies were unplanned and young mothers are more likely to quit school, require public assistance and live in poverty.³³ Over 41 percent of male and 23 percent of female study participants reported being sexual active. Age differences with first sexual partner varied according to gender with males reporting no age difference, and females' first partners being on average five years older.³⁴

The Assumption University teenage sexual behavior survey covered 2,384 teenagers in Bangkok in 2008. It showed that one fifth of the teenagers surveyed said they will likely end up having sex and about 15.4 per cent had previous sexual experiences. Some 58.8 per cent of these said that they practiced safe sex sometimes while 21.1 per cent said they had never used condoms before.³⁵ Valentine's Day celebrations in Cambodia do not happen only in Phnom Penh by young people, but also in Battambang province. As one article describes: "groups of young people gave a rose or any gifts to their sweethearts or friends on the streets and they may go to guest-houses. These are mostly young people and students aged from 15 to 20. According to the guest-house and hotel prices for "Krab Teuk Khmom" a scene of sex for one or two hours charged upto 15,000 to 20,000 riels (around US$5). However, a young man recognized that the Valentine's Day was a really foreign influence and some girls lost their virginity on that day. He saw his friends liked that activity. Whereas guest-house managers, they also said that on February 14, there were

The WHO released new findings of an estimated 42 million induced abortions among women aged 15-44 years old in 2003, 48% of all abortions worldwide were unsafe, and more than 97% of all unsafe abortions were in developing countries.³⁷ Unsafe abortions were associated with increasing maternal mortality rates among women aged 15-49 years in Cambodia; 472 deaths per 100,000 live births.³⁸ Meanwhile, the WHO estimated the abortion mortality rate in Cambodia as 130/100,000 per live births. 45% of abortions took place at home.³⁹ This issue was personalized by the reported experience of a couple of young people who had sex before marriage, the young woman became pregnant and had an unsafe abortion as a result. The story "My wedding day ... the day my fiancée died." demonstrates the danger of unsafe abortions.⁴⁰

Another case deals with a girl who tried to speak out about an experience in which she was subject to non-consensual sex by her sangsar because she trusted him and then her 'sangsar' abandoned her. The 17 year old first had sex with her boyfriend at 15 years old, this is what she described:

*'I found out that my boyfriend was not honest with me, he only wanted to sleep with me for pleasure...at first I refused his sexual advances and he became quite violent. Actually he raped me... however, he persisted, taking off my shirt completely. He was trying to penetrate me...we had sex, there was a trace of blood and I was very sore afterwards. Not long after this he abandoned me.'*⁴¹

According to Cambodian socio-cultural norms, if her 'sangsar' speaks openly about this to his friends or other people about breaking up after having sex, she would be judged as 'mahop-del-ker'. This euphemism refers to food which has been eaten to describe women who have already had sex and that no one then wants to marry. While conducting research on 'professional girlfriends' and women employed in the entertainment sectors, Heidi Hoefinger (2013) found that some young women who had been involved in intimate sexual relations with both their Cambodian and/or foreign boyfriends had either harmed themselves, or even attempted suicide, by cutting their wrists or overdosing on medicine after the boyfriends cheated on them or left them for another woman. She explained that this self-harming behavior was related to various factors such as depression over a 'broken-heart', pain of rejection, fear over lack of future security, complete desperation, depression over losing virginity to that particular partner, or in some cases, a desire to 'hurt him back'.⁴²

The 'bauk' phenomenon has also become popular and common among the current generation of young males. This was first described in 2002 in peer ethnographic research and focus group discussions among university male students. They stated that 'bauk was common among their peers.'⁴³ In addition, many sex workers have suffered sexual abuse and gang rape (bauk). As Serei Mon, a 17 year old sex worker who was a shy country girl described:

*'I have been gang-raped more times than I can remember, around 20 times... Those boys swore, slapped kicked me. They told me that they had paid the full price and they could do whatever they wanted.'*⁴⁴

Another youth study related to bauk found that it is not only occurring amongst sex workers but also with students. A 20 year old high school student stated:

*'For me and my friends we also use bauk with students. I just have sex with that girl like a sweetheart, two or three times. After that I call my friends to bauk her and then I break up with her.'*⁴⁵

Recently, a PSI and FHI study titled, 'Let's Go for a Walk...' stated that many men view sweethearts, including sweethearts who are non-brothel-based entertainment workers, as safe (or at least safer), meaning not having a sexually transmitted infection. Other men have begun to perceive sweethearts who are beer promoters or karaoke workers to be unsafe, but still perceive virgins, students, and women from the countryside as safe. So long as men's sex-seeking focus is on finding safer partners with whom they believe they do not need to use condoms, the search for "safe sex" will go on.⁴⁶

⁴² Though this was not experienced by all sexually active young women in her study, it does reveal some of the psycho-behavioral consequences that result from challenges, conflicts and misunderstandings that arise within some intimate relationships.

A previous quantitative study has described premarital sex among young people aged between 15 and 24 years in Cambodia (1846 respondents agreed to answer questions related to sexual behavior). 34.3% of respondents reported they had had sexual intercourse, while 28.5% of single men reported that they have had sex compared to only 1.0% of unmarried women. This study also reported that 12.2% of respondents knew that bowk (= bauk) meant gang rape, with urban youth more likely to say that bowk was gang rape (30.0%) than young rural people were (5.7%).⁴⁷

A Cambodian National Youth Risk Behavior Survey (11-18 years & n = 9,388) indicated that 148 young people had had sex and 32.4% of them never used condoms, and a third personally knew young men involved in gang rape baowk (bauk).⁴⁸ Males can seek sexual pleasure without being subject to a wide range of social sanctions. Females are also thought of being able to seek sexual pleasure, but they do not have the opportunity to hang out and they cannot find sexual services. In a survey of moto-taxi drivers,⁴⁹ 72.6% had heard of bauk incidents, and knew of steav (= punk) who were involved in bauk. This study interviewed 192 moto-taxi drivers who worked at night time in the front of bars, karaoke clubs and brothels, and early morning in the front of hotels and hotels and guest houses in each of 20 provinces and 4 cities other than Phnom Penh. In addition, another youth study in Phnom Penh stated that a massive 60% of male university students knew others who have been involved in bauk.⁵⁰

Conservative parents of young Cambodians who wish to preserve Khmer Culture often feel that most young Cambodians are out of control and ignore all cultural conditions. A 67 year old rural peasant male expresses his sentiments:

'Today children have no respect for the teacher or the monks ... but as for sexual knowledge, particularly associated with sexual activity, young people learn from one another. If one of my sons were to get an unmarried girl pregnant, I would disown him if *he refused to get married or paid some form of monetary compensation to her family ... it is better to disown such a child.'*⁵¹

RHIYA project recently completed a qualitative study which included this new generation's parents' opinions on premarital sex. A 48 year old married man in Phnom Penh stated:

*'Parents will not allow their daughter to date before marriage. However, in terms of equal rights this is not correct. Girls need to have sex as well. In Khmer tradition, this may not be correct, but in terms of equal rights, men and women should be given the same treatment. We can provide the girls with training and some knowledge on how to protect themselves if they wanted to have sex, like using condoms and contraceptives.'*⁵²

III. Methodology

3.1. Research Design

A cross-sectional survey design was chosen for this survey. This is the same design as 2009, allowing for chosen to be the same as the previous study in 2009. It can accomplish the aim of exploration or descriptions. It can also be used for explanatory studies since background information and retrospective data can be related to current statuses, and current statuses to future expectations and aspirations.⁵³ Therefore, the structured questionnaire was designed to find the background of respondents, and their expectations on activity, love and sexual relationships regarding the upcoming Valentine's Day; and also their sexual behavior in the last three months. The questionnaire also included questions designed to gauge the respondents' awareness about consensual sex. The questionnaires are separated into four categories of the population aged 15-24 years old and wealthier young people in Phnom Penh: young males in a couple, young males not in a couple, young females in a couple and young females not in a couple.

Because of the sensitive nature of the subject matter of this study, self-administered questionnaires are used and are given directly to respondents for complete. Very little assistance was made available except in the case that a respondent did not understand a question.⁵⁴ However, this method makes interviewees confident enough to share their experiences and their plans regarding upcoming Valentine's Day. It also gives enough time for interviewers to catch up other individual or group of interviewees.

However, due to the sensitive questionnaire related sexual activity, the author decided to use self-administered method to allow the interviewee to have more confidence to complete as anonymous and all interviewees were informed not to complete any question that they do want. But this method is higher uncompleted rate; so, if the total number of each variable is lower than the total respondents. Missing data was not analyzed, calculated or reported.

3.2. Sample Size Calculation and Additional Adjustments in Computing the Sample Size

For this study, proportion formula is calculated, using statistics to determine sample size:⁵⁵

$$N = (Z / e)^2 p (1-p)$$

Where N = sample size;

Z = the standard score corresponding to a given confidence level;

“e” = the proportion of sampling error; and p = estimated proportion or incidence of cases.

- Z table 95% = 1.96
- If “e” = 5%
- p = 0.30

$$N = (1.96 / 0.05)^2 0.3 (1-0.3) = \underline{323}$$

Sample design effect

The original sample size is N = 323, therefore to adjust for sample design effect:

$$N = 323 \times 1.3 = 420$$

Expected response rate

The researcher estimated that perhaps only 80% of the sample would respond to the survey, therefore:

$$N = 420 / 0.8 = 525$$

Expected proportion of eligible respondents

The researcher estimated that perhaps only 90% of the sample would be eligible to complete the survey, therefore:

$$N = 525 / 0.9 = \underline{584}$$

Expected data discard

The researcher estimated that perhaps 5% of the data collected would need to be discarded

$$N = 584 / 0.95 = \underline{615}$$

Finally, the total sample size, adjusted for this survey is 615.

3.3. Sampling

The target population of this study is wealthier young people aged 15-24 years old who are in Phnom Penh at the time of data collection. Study location was based on the qualitative Valentine's Day in Phnom Penh in 2008 study where almost respondents said that they always hang out at certain places near the riverfront on the weekends and special days as well: *"On Valentine's Day this year, we hung out at the Riverfront park, then had dinner together and went back home. I think that day is when all couples show their love with each other."*⁵⁶ Thus, cluster sampling is used here primarily for administrative convenience.⁵⁷

Due to Phnom Penh urban development and changing desired locations amongst young people, the geographic cluster sampling locations from 2009 were revised. Four parks around the riverfront were selected: Independent park, Wat Botum park, the park in the front of the Royal Palace and Koh Pich island. By observation the target population is estimated to be around 200 persons, including couples, at each park during the weekend evenings and Koh Pich is the highest population. These populations move every 15 to 20 minutes. Therefore, the total population of 615 was divided into 4 areas. The interview teams (a male and a female) were asked to give questionnaires to four categories of people in these locations: young male in a couple, young male not in a couple, young female in a couple and young female not in a couple.

3.4. Data Collection Method

All the research assistants were trained for half a day on Saturday, January 18, 2014. As all were trained sexual and reproductive health and current peer educators of PHD, the researcher assumed that they had experience contacting wealthier young people. However, the interviewers were trained on the study's objectives, methodology, simple sampling, data collection technique of self-administered questionnaire, role play of face-to-face interview with the same sex (in case the respondent cannot read the questionnaire) and pre-test with drafted questionnaire (See 4 final questionnaires in appendix 2). The interviewers worked in pairs of one male and one female, with males interviewing males, and females interviewing females. The interviewers were paired in each park in male/female partnerships for four reasons: it is easier to ask sensitive questions of the same sex; for support when approaching and interviewing couples; for support if the questionnaire is not clear or any problems; and for security.

⁵⁶ Soprach, T. (2009). Op cit., p. 15

⁵⁷ Fink, A. and Kosecoff, J. (1985). Op cit., p. 57

Four points defined acceptable data collection, including: the name of the interviewer, the signature of the respondent in the informed consent section, the age of respondent in the target population age-group, (not lower than 15 or over 25 years old) and all completed questionnaires stapled in envelopes.

The original quantitative study took place over two days. For this study, the author decided to add one more day (Friday) to enable a larger sample size. Data collection occurred on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, January 24-26, 2014 from 4:30pm to 7:30pm at the 4 parks near the riverfront. The researcher recruited a field team leader who has experience in survey methodology, and the author acted as supervisor for all research assistants in field data collection.

In the field, each research assistant was given 70 questionnaires (35 for couple and 35 one for non-couple), 500 semi-A4 envelopes, 1 stapler. 800 pens were used as a gift to interviewees who completed the questionnaire, and 2 plastic bags for storage of completed questionnaires in envelopes were used to ensure anonymity of respondents.

Before interviewing, all research assistants had to complete the name code, location and their name in the informed consent section. And then they explained the objectives of the survey. If the prospective interviewee agreed to take part, the interviewer gave a questionnaire and an envelope to the interviewee, explaining about confidentiality, and allowed the interviewee to read it carefully. Before starting to complete the questionnaire, the research assistants need to make sure that the interviewee completed the informed consent and age. After completing the questionnaire, interviewers allowed the interviewees to put the completed questionnaire in an envelope themselves; and interviewers stapled it in front of interviewees and put it into the plastic bags. The interviewers helped the interviewees to answer any question that they didn't understand. In any case where the interviewee couldn't read, the research assistant either interviewed them or allowed a friend to read the questionnaire for them, and asked them to tick the relevant box themselves.

The supervisor collected all the completed questionnaires in envelopes from research assistants each day after 7:30pm and also received any feedback from the field.

3.5. Data Entry and Cleaning

A day after data collection, the researcher designed variables in SPSS 18.0, and trained a IT team leader to coach the data entry assistants to enter the data. Data was rejected if even one of the crucial criteria data was missing. Criteria included the name of interviewer or signature of respondents in the informed consent form, if the age of respondent was not in the required age range or any completed questionnaires not stapled in envelopes. Of 751 respondents, around 5 percent (36 respondents) were removed. Thus, the final number of respondents was 715. The author checked quality control for the data entry team to verify the data entry was correct.

3.6. Data Analysis

The author was responsible for analyzing data. However, an assistant helped produce the tables in Ms Excel after analyzing from SPSS with Frequency and Cross-tab.

IV. Results

This study aimed compare the activities of young people prior to Valentine’s Day 2009 and 2014 in the hope of drawing attention to these issues at that time. The total number of valid respondents in 2014 was 715, compared to 458 respondents in 2009. Table 1 shows the total population broken down by sex in four fairly equal categories, and males (376: 52.6%) and females (339: 47.4%). The total observations were broken most equally can also be characterized into two categories of young couple (male/female) and young people not in a couple (male/female) (Table 2). The sample population aged 15-24 years old revealed normal distribution with the variance of average age 21.0 years in 2014 compared to 20.6 years in 2009 (Table 3).

Koh Pich island was not included in 2009 as it was not as developed and qualitative analysis showed that many young people at that time liked to go to other parks in the city.

4.1. Routine Activities of Wealthier Young People

Table 5 shows that routine activities reported were similar in 2009 and 2014. More than two thirds (67%) of respondents replied that they always come here (the target parks), and one third (32.9%) of respondents said they do not always come here (the park of the interview), but sometimes go to others parks; especially, Koh Pich island nearby the target park. The majority of respondents who responded that they do not always come here said they usually go elsewhere, such as restaurants, shopping, or karaoke, or stay at home, among others (Table 6).

The number of young people and young couples who said they consider Valentine's Day to be a special day decreased in 2014 compared to 2009 (Table 7, 8). This downward trend was observed both in young people in a couple and young people not in a couple (Figure 1).

The data for 2009 and 2014 are difficult to compare on this question, as the answer options were adapted in 2014. However the distribution of a few reasons attempted for sex increased markedly: "I will say to her if we don't have sex we don't really love each other, to try to get her to agree", "I will pressure her by taking her far from town to try to have sex with her". The 2014 survey found that a new answer was particularly popular; approximately 30 percent of young males and young males in a couple said: "I will give her more expensive gift with the aim of having sex with her".

Young people were asked their perspectives on Bauk. The proportion of respondents who recognized that Bauk is gang rape increased (2009: 22.7% vs 2014: 28.1%). However, it decreased two times for the statement “Bauk is not rape if it is with a sex worker, because we already paid for and she agreed with us to have sex” (2009: 30.8% vs 2014: 13.8%). The comparison of Bauk knowledge is broken down by sex. The following Table 38 indicates knowledge of Bauk for young males and young females. Young males reported knowledge of Bauk was not variant around 30 percent since the previous study, but knowledge of Bauk increased amongst young females (2009: 15.5% vs 2014: 25.0%). V. Discussion

This study can help guide interventions targeting Valentine's Day and young people's behavior. The results include the stakeholders: school principals, teachers, concerned institutions, local authorities, media, parents, novel writers⁵⁸ and sexual and reproductive health programmers⁵⁹; especially, Ministry of ⁵⁸ described that the novel on 'Regret' was issued before the upcoming Valentine's Day in 2009 by the conservative Amara Publisher in 2009 to raise awareness among young people on impact of premarital sex or sexual involvement during the Valentine's Day. The novel described: "A 16-year-old young female Liny who is a middle wealthy kid was studying at high school. Her girlfriends pressured her to hang out on the Valentine's Day, February 14. She asked her mother who doesn't know Valentine's Day well, and her mother just warned her... 'This is European culture'. She also argued with her mother that she didn't have any boyfriend, but just wanted to hang out with her classmates. At the morning of that day, Liny received a flower branch from her girlfriend Nary who also got from a young man Kuolen who was a very rich kid and studied at the same school. Nary persuaded Liny for Kuolen and then all of them passed the Japanese bridge and relaxed a small hut, and after that Nary left Liny and Kuolen for have sex by putting sexual arousal and sleeping substances inside coconut water and gave it to Liny to drink; meanwhile, Liny suffered from having sex by Kulen... Kulen got in an road accident after leaving that place. Liny got sick in a hospital and when she came back home, her parents were dead and all the things of her heritage were stolen by her relatives with fraud documentation. Liny got nothing, she became a karaoke girl, drug addicted and finally she got infected by HIV/AIDS."

Women's Affairs who are concerned about Khmer women and girls.⁶⁰ This study also compares the progress of wealthier young people's behaviors on the upcoming Valentine's Day.

The results show that some visible things are more likely to improve than the previous study. Young people were less interested in the upcoming Valentine's Day as special day; especially, among young people in a couple. Many of them still planned to hang out on the upcoming Valentine's Day, but at least one third of young people preferred to stay at home, an increase since 2009. Giving gifts were decreased while young males may still give flowers, but the trend of young couple is to increasingly buy more expensive gifts for their sweetheart. There was not much change in young couple dating on the upcoming Valentine's Day from the previous study.

Sexual relationships among young people who will be able to have sex on the upcoming Valentine's Day decreased compared to the previous study, but young people in a couple planning to have sex increased (2009: 14.3% vs 2014: 15.8%). In this group, the percent of people who do not plan to use a condom increased two times. Those planning for first sex was around the same (around 40 percent). Correlations were observed between young people who plan for sex on the upcoming Valentine's Day and those who think the upcoming Valentine's Day is a special day.

The concern to non-consensual sex amongst young males, the proportion of them who plan for sex if their girlfriend / new girlfriend does not agree to has sex decreased (2009: 66.6% vs 2014: 52.6%). However the distribution of reasons attempt for sex increased markedly: "I will say to her if we don't have sex we don't really love each other, to try to get her to agree", "I will pressure her by taking her far from town to try to have sex with her", but it only appeared this upcoming Valentine's Day 2014. Amongst young males and young males in a couple, many people said: "I will give her more expensive gift with the aim of having sex with her".

Approximately the same number of parents talked with their children about Valentine's Day as in 2009. Around half of the parents did not know what their children would do on the upcoming Valentine's Day. At least one third of young people still do not know where Valentine's Day come from.

With Valentine's Day becoming more popular in Cambodia, some people argue that it is a fault of Western culture. Some people misinterpreted the meaning of Valentine's Day history, stating that February 14 is no longer just about exchanging messages of love. On St. Valentine's It is the day that you show your friend or loved one that you care by sending poems and simple gifts such as flowers.⁶¹ Moreover, young people used the Valentine's Day as a catalyst for sex. But some socialists would argue with this foreign culture influence, but why doesn't Cambodian government create or update their own culture rather than just blaming? ⁶² If we ask Cambodian people if they are Buddhist, 97 per cent will say they are.⁶³ This upcoming Valentine's Day will be held on 14th February, but this year 2014 will be the same time of Makha Buchea national holiday;⁶⁴ Many young people are changing the Khmer term they use for Valentine's Day from "Thgnay Boun Sangsar", which literally translates to "Sweetheart celebration day" to "Tivea Neay Kday Sroalanh", which translates to "Loving day". This is a positive change, as it moves away from a term commonly associated with sex to a term which signifies more general love.⁶⁵

Approximately half of young people reported that they were not aware of their sexual rights and condom use. And young people in a couple who plan for sex on the upcoming Valentine's Day is increased. This draws attention to sexual and reproductive health and HIV/AIDS experts⁶⁶ to be concerned that their behavior will be at risk of sexual transmitted infection and HIV/AIDS, whereas young females are more likely to try for an unsafe abortion if they try to seek illegal service or fake drug to abort. But rights activists commends that sexual relationships among young people are not just on February 14, nor is unique to Valentine's Day, this expanding of sexual freedom is not unique to Cambodia.⁶⁷

As for non-consensual sex case, the social experts should be concerned about cheating or forcing by economic intention or buy expensive gift to his girlfriend to have sex with. A "Bauk" case appeared among young males who have experience with their male peers. On the other hand, the short term impact of sexual relationships might appear among young people who would be at risk of suicide when their partner walked away; especially, young female is more likely at higher risk.^{68, 69}

VI. Conclusion and Recommendations

These Valentine's Day quantitative study findings give more quantified information to compare to the previous study in 2009 that wealthier young people still do not understand the background of Valentine's Day clearly. Visible activities such as special day, giving gift and hang out appear more likely to decrease, but invisible activities such as plan for sex, non-consensual sex, talked about sexual issue, parents who don't know their children will do on that day is unchanged. The findings were more concerned about sexual rights and condom use among young people in a couple on the Valentine's Day.

Therefore, intervention needs to be continuing to put more focus on sexual rights and condom use education before and this upcoming Valentine's Day:

- Further directions for research:

- Need to undertake more study on the influences of Western culture on Khmer culture.

- Programmer:

- Increase awareness-raising on the issues surrounding Valentine's Day, and SRH in general, gender concept, such as sexual consent and safer sex.
- SRH and HIV programs among young people should target interventions before and on Valentine's Day in accordance with this study's findings of all the target urban areas where they will go and provincial cities in Cambodia.

- Media:

- Disseminate the information from the findings of this study before and on that day.

- Local Authorities and Police:

- Raise more awareness on Khmer culture Meak Buchea and sexual rights in their community.
- Provide 24 hours security on the 2 bridges: Chroy Chang Var (Japanese bridge) and Monivongs around the Valentine's Day.

- Parents and Teachers:

- Provide advice on Sexual Reproductive Health and HIV and AIDS to their children and students. At least, speak out: "Don't bring AIDS home!", "Be careful of getting pregnant!", "Don't trust your partner!" and "Keep conservative on Khmer culture!" before and on Valentine's Day.
- Try to build open communication with your children every day about SRH.
- Be aware what your children and students are doing on Valentine's Day.

before and after the Valentine's Day Festival Day. And the most victims were young females who said that their husbands or boyfriends had been unfaithful to them and that life was no longer worth living and they jump from the bridges into the river, they were picked up by police officers there and after that the police officers sent them home. He also pointed out that during the Valentine's Day, his police launched are on call 24 hours a day."
Kongkea, B. (2009, Feb. 15-21). Valentine's Days Affects Khmer Culture. Cambodia Weekly. p. 12.

- Principal and teacher should use the new manual of the Sexual and Reproductive Health in high school and also raise this awareness at universities as well. And to implement National Policy on Cambodia Youth Development.

- Young people:

- Have to be aware of SRH and HIV, condom use if you are choosing to be sexually active.
- Behave in a way that protects your life.
- Be aware you have a choice to have sex or not.
- Don't commit suicide due to Valentine's Day!

THE PHNOM PENH POST'S KHMER EDITION

Phnom Penh: Nowadays, Valentine's Day is celebrated by a lot of Cambodian youth as a day for fun, hanging out with your friends and love. But what does love mean? Some Cambodian youth confuse love as meaning having sex with their boyfriend or girlfriend for the first time on Valentine's Day to prove they really love each other. But is this real love?

Srey Leak (not her real name) is a young woman who called Marie Stopes International Cambodia hotline, and she wants to share her Valentine's Day story with you, to avoid you having the same fate as her.

"My name is Srey Leak. I want to tell you my past experience of Valentine's Day. I moved to Phnom Penh in 2009 from Kampong Speu province. My parents had worked hard to save money for me to come to Phnom Penh to study finance at university. I was considered a beautiful girl with big brown eyes, and shiny long hair. Everyone said I looked like Sokun Nisa. I was popular among the students and I had a lot of friends. I also had a boyfriend who was a student at my university. Sometimes he asked me to have sex with him, but he was a gentle and when I always refused he never forced me.

On Valentine's Day in 2010, my friends and my boyfriend and I arranged to meet at Soriya Mall and then drive our moto bikes around and stop in the park to sit and chat. Then we all went together to have suki soup for dinner, my boyfriend stopped to buy me a rose on the way. It was a lot of fun, laughing and joking with my friends and my boyfriend. At the end of the dinner after my friends had gone home and it was just my boyfriend and I left, my boyfriend told me he loved me and gave me a present. It was a small diamond necklace. It was the most beautiful thing I had ever received. No one had ever given me such a beautiful gift. I thanked him very much for the gift. It was then that he told me that he wanted for us to express our love for each other by spending the night at the guesthouse. I felt afraid and didn't want to go. I told him I wanted it to be special to wait until I was married but he said that we loved each other and it was Valentine's Day. I tried to refuse but then he became angry and sad and threatened to break up with me. I didn't want to break up. I loved him. So I agreed to go to the guest house with him and spend the night together.

I didn't like that he had forced me to spend the night at the guesthouse but this was love, right? And he never forced me to do it again so I didn't think about it anymore. Things carried on as normal after that night. I continued with my studies and we would occasionally meet for dinner or sometimes even a movie at Lux Cinema.

One or two months after Valentine's Day I began to miss my period. Sometimes I would also feel tired and sick. I began to worry. My friends suggested I should go to the pharmacy and buy the pregnancy test kit. It was then that I found out that I was pregnant.

I didn't know anything about pregnancy or contraception. I had heard about Number 1 condom but when I asked my boyfriend at the guest house on Valentine's Day he said if we really loved each other, we didn't need to use condom and I should stop worrying and I should trust him. I felt so ashamed that now I was unmarried and pregnant. When I told my boyfriend that I was pregnant he became angry. He told me that he didn't love me anymore, he didn't want a baby and that he couldn't support me. I felt very alone. I didn't know what to do. I went to the pharmacy and bought some unregistered pills to make me have abortion. The pharmacist did not tell me how I should take the medicine. After I took the medicine it made me very sick and I had heavy bleeding for many days and I got a fever and infection. I learnt about the Marie Stopes hotline from a friend and called the hotline to see what I should do. The friendly operator on the phone told me where to go to get a health service. When I got to the hospital the infection was so bad that I had to stay for 1 week in the hospital. Afterwards I felt very weak and found it difficult to concentrate. Because I had to spend a lot of money on health care I could no longer afford my school fees so I had to stop my studies. Now I cannot fulfil my dream to work as a finance officer in a bank. Now I have to work hard selling groceries at the small stand in front of my parents house to support my parents who are getting old," said Srey Leak.

Mrs La Somaly, midwife and hotline counsellor at Marie Stopes International Cambodia, says that Srey Leak's story is common among Cambodian youth today. "I feel great pity for Srey Leak and other young Cambodian women because if they had learned that they had choices, they could have protected themselves against unwanted pregnancy and unsafe abortion on Valentine's Day if they had known. Marie Stopes International Cambodia has a Pregnancy Options and Advice Hotline that women can call to get information and advice if they become pregnant. Wherever you are located in Cambodia, you can call to the confidential Marie Stopes International Pregnancy Advice and Options hotline and our friendly hotline counsellors can help you and answer your questions about how to prevent unwanted pregnancy and find safe health service.

Srey Leak has a final bit of advice for all readers: "I want to share my story with other Cambodian women to provide you with advice so that your life will not be difficult like mine and so that you can follow your dreams. I want to advise young Cambodian women that not everything in life always goes to plan and that you should be prepared if things don't go to plan. Cambodian women should be strong and not allow their partners to force them to have sex. If your partner really loves you he will wait because true love can wait. But if you and your partner both think it is really the right time to have sex, make sure you are prepared to protect yourself from unplanned pregnancies and sexually diseases. To be a smart Cambodian woman you should empower yourself by informing yourself about your sexual and reproductive health options. That way you can protect yourself and plan for a bright and happy future."

Fleeting Valentine's Day trysts in the confines of cheap guesthouses are not the Cambodian way, and young couples should love every day – provided they make a life-long commitment to their partners, Prime Minister Hun Sen said yesterday. "It is not our culture," he said. "In Cambodia, we don't have only February 14 as a day for loving, we have 365 days, not just boyfriend and girlfriend, but also their parents" he said.⁷⁰

Telling Story 2: Nightmare on Valentine's Day

SET KIMSOEUN

THE PHNOM PENH POST'S KHMER EDITION

Phnom Penh: "Being too happy and obsessed for only a moment destroyed what I had kept since I was a baby, and left an unforgettable remorse I will feel my whole life". These are the words of a young girl who fell into a pitfall of love with a boyfriend this past Valentine's Day. Vatey (not her real name) said she was a stupid girl for what happened, and that she hated herself for losing her virginity due to only a few sweet words from her boyfriend.

Vatey, who is preparing to take the grade 12 high school-leaving examination this year, said she had exchanging love notes with the boy, a similar age youth who studies at a different high school, since mid-November 2012. They were introduced by friends who asked them to have a meal together at a restaurant. She recounts her story below:

After we met each other, we began communicating closely in only a few months. He showed feelings that he loved me so much. He always tried to do everything to make me happy and I started to be interested in him more and more.

⁷⁰ Retrieved February 7, 2014. <http://www.postkhmer.com/component/content/article/73233?lang=en>

We went out together often and about two weeks before Valentine's Day, he spoke frankly to me, saying that he loved me as much as his life, and he wanted me to live with him for his whole life. When I heard that, I was so excited and my feelings were flying in the sky because I had never heard such a word or love confession before. Suddenly my mind become completely soft and showed my feelings of love toward him too. We became closer and closer, unable to be separated for even a minute. We spent all our time chatting together and went out to have meals together almost non-stop. Even at night, we phoned and chatted until midnight.

Not so long after this, Valentine's Day came. I was nervous because I didn't know what to do on that day. Every day, he and I became sweeter and sweeter, and on the last few days before Valentine's Day, my boyfriend looked very strange. He said he wanted to stay with me without anyone else. I didn't know what he was imagining. He asked me to go to the provinces with only him. He told me that he wanted to build our love stronger and stronger, and that he would come to propose to me to be his wife in accordance with the tradition and law.

I kept refusing, and this made him angry. In fact, I wanted to spend time with him, but I thought it would not be appropriate. I told him that I would spend the whole day on Valentine's Day with him. When Valentine's Day arrived, he reminded me of my promise, which made it too difficult for me to refuse.

On Valentine's Day he told me that he loved me so much and asked me whether I loved him back. And if I loved him, to what extent? He said he wanted to see the extent of my love to him. At first I didn't understand his words, but then he said honestly that he wanted to sleep with me. He wanted me to make love to him. When hearing this word, I was so surprised and didn't dare to reply to his request at all, although he asked me several times.

On February 14, he brought me to a party to drink with his friends. He asked me to keep drinking, until I was so drunk. He asked again for me to make love to him. He asked me to sleep with him at a guesthouse but I refused. He seemed to be so unhappy with me. He wouldn't talk to me. Then, seeing that I was so drunk, he carried me to sleep in his friend's room and he seized that opportunity to hug and kiss me forcefully, even with my refusal. That day was the day I lost my virginity, which I had maintained for almost 20 years.

Now, even though he still loves me, I have so much remorse. At the moment, my feelings are very complicated. I don't know what to do. I am afraid that when my parents know about this, they will be angry. What would they think about me? I am afraid he will leave me because he has already got my body. Most serious, I am afraid of being pregnant. What is the best way should I deal with this?⁷¹
